Afridi Tribesmen in Attack on Peshawar, India

ARTILLERY FIRE IS EMPLOYED IN ANSWER SUNDAY

FIGHTING OUTSIDE OF PESHAWAR CONTINUES INTERMITTENTLY

AFRIDI TRIBESMEN CONTINUALLY CROSSING AFGHAN FRONTIER

The following delayed and censored dispatch from Peshawar describes the engagement yesterday between troops defending the city and Afridi tribesmen attacking from the hills. Part of the censored text was garbled and a statement that 13 persons were killed or wounded at Phandu, south of Peshawar, failed to make clear whether the dead were soldiers or tribesmen.

Peshawar, India, Aug. 10. — (U.P.) — (Delayed by censor) — Artillery was in action all day Sunday against Afridi tribesmen attacking the city and early tonight it appeared that the invaders were merely attempting to hold their ground before Peshawar fort and the British mobilization supply depot near the railway station.

The artillery was firing from a position near the district court building and the grandstand of the race course. The Afridis were in the dense orchard district near the city railway station, which is only a few miles from the British cantonment.

Airplanes were constantly flying over the orchards in an effort to observe the actions of the tribal warriors and armoured cars were operating in the orchards and gardens outside the city walls.

Sunday afternoon the aviators renewed their bombing of the ravines that run from east to south of Peshawar beyond the cultivated tract of land at Badger. These ravines provide Afridis with lines of communication. The ravines start 12 miles from Peshawar near Bara fort and reach to within less than a mile of this city, ending near Phandu village on the south.

As the result of a fight with the Poonia Horse (native cavalry) at Phandu yesterday, thirteen were killed and wounded.

Peshawar, India, Aug. 11. — Defending troops which have turned back the repeated Afridi tribal attacks on Peshawar in the last three days were mustered today against the additional threat of an advance by the powerful forces of the notorious Haji of Turang-zai.

Coincident with the tribal proposals to the Haji that he move his forces against Peshawar, Raisalpur and Cherat, the frontier authorities were forced to send troops to Nowshera, some 30 miles distant, to meet indications of an Afridi attack there.

The proposals to the Haji of Turang-zai, who was warned by British authorities last spring when he advanced toward Peshawar, apparently were made by the leaders of the assault on Peshawar, but it was not known whether the hostile chieftain would join in the tribal warfare.

The fighting outside Peshawar continued intermittently, with the Afridi tribesmen continually crossing the Afghan frontier and hiding in caves five or six miles from the city. They made a practice of conducting raids or sniping expeditions during the night.

Airplanes, cavalry and gunners took part in fighting near the city yesterday when a large group of Afridis reached the outskirts of Peshawar and hid in the orchards to ambush a group of the Poonia Horse (native cavalry). Six cavalrymen were wounded. The Afridis then moved on to the military depot.

The first British cavalry brigade rode rapidly to the station and attacked, while aviators flew overhead and bombed the invaders. Guns were brought into action and trained on tribesmen scattered through the extensive orchards and gardens near the city.

Fighting was at its height about noon and continued all afternoon as the attackers scattered and reformed or withdrew toward the hills. Later the Afridi forces began maneuvering toward Nowshera, apparently preparing for an attack there. All passenger and freight traffic between Peshawar and Nowshera was suspended temporarily to aid in movement of troops. A brigade of reinforcements and an armoured train were started from Lahore.

Peshawar communications were hampered when the tribesmen cut all telephone wires. Roads were patrolled by armoured cars as troops continued to clear the nearby orchards of tribesmen.

Lahore, India, Aug. 11. — An armoured train bearing the Northumberland Fusiliers departed late last night for an unannounced destination which was believed to be Nowshera, where an attack by Afridi tribesmen was reported impending. The chief commissioner of the frontier

FARMER VIGILANTES TRAP FOUR FILLING STATION BANDITS

Terre Haute, Ind., Aug. 11. — (U.P.) — Farmer vigilantes trapped four filling station bandits today, shot one to death and captured his three companions.

The dead bandit was identified as Roy Long, son of Charles F. Long, former county road superintendent.

Long, driver of the bandit automobile, was shot as the vigilantes surrounded a filling station five miles east of Brazil and opened fire from cornfields, from atop the station and from an automobile.

Floyd Frye, of Terre Haute, one of the bandits, was wounded in the leg when Long's companions returned the vigilante fire.

Long's death caused the bandit motor car to careen into a ditch, but the bandits took up a stand behind it and fought for several minutes before surrendering.

All were identified as Terre Haute youths. They had just held up the Wawley filling station.

O'BRIEN AND JACKSON PILOTING ENDURANCE PLANE AT ST. LOUIS

TAKING LAZY CIRCLES OVER LAMBERT MUNICIPAL FLYING FIELD

By PAUL H. KING (United Press Staff Correspondent) Lambert Municipal Flying Field, St. Louis, Aug. 11. — A new record but two days away. Forest O'Brien and Dale Jackson piloted their endurance monoplane, "Greater St. Louis," in large lazy circles today.

Confident they would surpass the present record of 553 hours, held by the Hunter brothers of Sparta, Ill., the former holders of the refueling endurance record passed their 505th hour in the air at 3:11 A. M. (CST.)

At 9:53 A. M. CST. the fliers were 48 hours from a new record, and messaged over their radio sending set that they hoped to stay up indefinitely. O'Brien started to sing a popular song, but Jackson apparently cut the radio off, for it went unheeded.

The monoplane will equal the Hunter brothers' record if still up at 8:53 A. M. Wednesday, but must remain aloft another hour to set a new mark.

"Well, we are drawing near the record and intend taking no more chances such as stunting a bit. We both feel fine and are sure we are going to establish a record that other flyers will not care to shoot at," O'Brien and Jackson said in notes dropped to the ground crew.

"It's cold as the devil up here and before long we may need some fur lined bathing suits — so get them ready."

"If you have any tooth picks down there hurry them up so we can prop our eyes open; we're getting plenty sleepy."

The notes indicated both man and machine were holding out strongly against their battle with time.

"The Challenger motor is functioning perfectly and we feel that we make good our promise of remaining aloft one month."

Already Lambert Field has taken on a carnival spirit. Cold drink and hot dog stands are springing up and hundreds of persons remain at the field nightly to watch the flight.

Newspapers and radio stations already have taken up their vigil.

The fliers will establish a new record at 9:53 A. M. (CST.) Wednesday if they still are aloft.

AIRCRAFT AND TRUCKS RUSH MEN AND EQUIPMENT TO TERRITORY

COOL WEATHER BRINGS RELIEF TO FOREST RANGERS IN NORTHERN MINNESOTA

Prince Albert, Sask., Aug. 11. — (U.P.) — Aircraft and trucks rushed men and equipment 200 miles to the north today to stem the red menace of forest fires that flames across the northern wilderness.

Emergency radio calls told of a "serious outbreak" at Pelican Narrows, 90 miles east of Lac La Ronge and more than 200 miles north of Prince Albert.

The call for aid was sent from the Ladder Lake air base, already drained of fire fighters by other blazes in the vicinity.

Twenty rangers were dispatched by truck to Waskesiu lake, in Prince Albert National Park where a giant Vickers-Vancouver plane awaited with motors tuned up, ready to fly the men to the danger spot.

Later a second radio call asked for additional pumps to be dispatched to the Ladder Lake base in case other emergencies arose.

Northland radio stations reported the weather hot and dry with no signs of a break in the drought apparent. Prince Albert was drenched with an all-day drizzle, but the rain apparently was localized.

The Lake La Vallée blaze in Prince Albert National Park took hundreds of fire fighters from their normal outposts and left a serious menace should additional fires spring up.

After raging through the night and casting a red pall across the sky easily discernible by tourists camped at Waskesiu lake, 50 miles away, the fire was slowly dying away today under the drenching rain.

St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 11. — Cool weather brought relief to scores of forest rangers patrolling the tinder-dry forest areas of northern Minnesota.

Though nearly 50 small blazes still burned in scattered regions, none were serious, the forest service reported. The cool weather reduced the danger of fire.

Fires were heaviest in the Hibbing district while small conflagrations were reported at Deerwood, Moose Lake, Park Rapids and Duluth territories.

Most of the work now being done is patrol work, rangers said. Patrols have been organized to check on districts where fires were discovered last week.

Ashland, Wis., Aug. 11. — Five forest fires were being fought today in Wisconsin timberlands.

In the Moqueah national forest, 17 miles west of here, 1,500 acres of small trees and slashings were burned over by flames that continued to spread

Alarmed because a number of spectators were crowding too near the outside rail of the track, he was attempting to move them back out of danger when a speeding machine, in second place and traveling through a cloud of dust, struck him.

Whalon's wife was nearby and saw the accident. She fainted, but was revived. 2 YOUNG MEN OF THIEF RIVER FALLS AND MINNEAPOLIS MEET DEATH BY DROWNING

St. Paul, Aug. 11. — (U.P.) — Four persons were killed in the northwest over a weekend that brought the thermometer over the northwest down in the 50's for the first time in weeks.

Even the high temperatures for Sunday were more than 20 degrees lower than the high marks made early this month in July. Yesterday's temperatures in the Twin Cities were reported at 74.

The dead included: Herbert McLaughlin, 18, Watertown, S. D., who died from a fractured skull after being thrown from a speed boat on Lake Marion, 17 miles south of the Twin Cities.

Homer D. Wright, 53, Minneapolis, who was killed in an automobile accident at Sandstone, Minn.

Edward Klath, 17, Minneapolis, who drowned in Bass Lake.

Begging permission to take a boat on a trial run about the lake before the Northwest Speedboat association regatta on Lake Marion, McLaughlin cut his boat too short near a buoy while he was traveling at more than 40 miles an hour. He was thrown from the boat, which skidded up to him. The propeller hit his skull. The body was recovered 20 minutes later.

The number of destitute families in Cabell county was fixed at 1200 by W. D. Click, county farm agent. Need of urgent relief is acute and must be met immediately, it was said.

J. F. Wethington, secretary of the Tri-State Dairymen's Association, estimated 40 per cent of the farms are without a single cow to provide milk for home consumption. Thousands of head of calves have been slaughtered to provide funds for needed purchases to avert actual starvation, Wethington said.

"Panic-stricken farmers have been giving their herds away rather than attempt to keep and feed them through the winter," Wethington told the United Press.

DIES OF HEART
FAILURE WHEN TOLD
OF KIN'S DEATH

Chicago, Aug. 11. — (U.P.) — Informed that her brother-in-law, Robert Whalon, president of the National Automobile Racing association, had been killed by a racing car, Mrs. Bernice Whalon fell dead of heart disease at the German Deaconess hospital here.

Whalon, who was 37, was killed Sunday afternoon at Sterling, Ill., while trying to prevent other persons from being hurt.

Alarmed because a number of spectators were crowding too near the outside rail of the track, he was attempting to move them back out of danger when a speeding machine, in second place and traveling through a cloud of dust, struck him.

Whalon's wife was nearby and saw the accident. She fainted, but was revived. A few hours later, Mrs. Bernice Whalon, whose husband, Douglas, a brother of the national president, died two months ago, was told of the accident. She had been under treatment several weeks for heart disease and died immediately upon hearing of the tragedy.

Whalon's home was in Chicago, where he owned a battery station.

FALLS AND MINNEAPOLIS MEET
DEATH BY DROWNING

St. Paul, Aug. 11. — (U.P.) — Four persons were killed in the northwest over a weekend that brought the thermometer over the northwest down in the 50's for the first time in weeks.

Even the high temperatures for Sunday were more than 20 degrees lower than the high marks made early this month in July. Yesterday's temperatures in the Twin Cities were reported at 74.

The dead included: Herbert McLaughlin, 18, Watertown, S. D., who died from a fractured skull after being thrown from a speed boat on Lake Marion, 17 miles south of the Twin Cities.

Homer D. Wright, 53, Minneapolis, who was killed in an automobile accident at Sandstone, Minn.

Julius Marling, 26, Thief River Falls, who drowned in Tanners Lake.

Edward Klath, 17, Minneapolis, who drowned in Bass Lake.

Begging permission to take a boat on a trial run about the lake before the Northwest Speedboat association regatta on Lake Marion, McLaughlin cut his boat too short near a buoy while he was traveling at more than 40 miles an hour. He was thrown from the boat, which skidded up to him. The propeller hit his skull. The body was recovered 20 minutes later.

Wright and Dr. L. J. Fish, Minneapolis, were en route to a hunting lodge near Duluth when their automobile swerved into a ditch. The men were taken to Sandstone, where it was found Wright had died.

Several counties were confronted with the possibility of encountering actual starvation of hundreds of its citizens.

The number of destitute families in Cabell county was fixed at 1200 by W. D. Click, county farm agent. Need of urgent relief is acute and must be met immediately, it was said.

J. F. Wethington, secretary of the Tri-State Dairymen's Association, estimated 40 per cent of the farms are without a single cow to provide milk for home consumption. Thousands of head of cattle have been slaughtered to provide funds for needed purchases and more recently in attempts to avert actual starvation, Wethington said.

"Panic-stricken farmers have been giving their herds away rather than attempt to keep and feed them through the winter," Wethington told the United Press.

Seems like Daddy never is at home!
He goes to his office every day,
An' he jus' gets back at dinner-time,
Then he hasta hurry right away;
Says he hasta work again tonight,
Or he's got a meetin' at the club,
Or his bowlin' team has got a game
An' the captain says he'll hafta sub.

Even if he plans t' stay right here—
Even then, he hasn't got a chance;
Mother makes 'im take 'er to a show
Or somebody else's house t' dance,
Or they've been invited to a feed,
Or the Bridge Club has a party due . . .
Daddy fusses lots an' tries t' pike,
But he hasta go—an' like it, too!

I think Daddy wants t' be with me!
I jus' bet he'd rather play my games
Than t' get dressed-up 'most every night
An' be meetin' folks with funny names!
I jus' bet, if he could have his way,
He'd be home a lot more than he is—
But it looks like everybuddy's plans
Work out best when they are spoilin' his.

DADDY THE DAIRY

INCREASING GRAIN IN DAIRY RATION

Important When Pastures Are Dry in Autumn.

"When the pasture dries up and the grass becomes rather unpalatable, it is time to increase the amount of grain being fed to the dairy cows," says John Toliver, deputy Colorado state dairy commissioner. "It is also advisable to make sure that they have a good supply of fresh water. From 12 to 30 gallons of water are needed by a cow at this time of year, depending upon the size of the cow, the nature of her feed and the state of lactation period."

Too often a close examination of the pasture will reveal far less grass than a glance would indicate. It becomes dry, short and few cows can maintain their body weight, let alone get enough to provide for milk production.

Toliver recommends at least one pound of grain for each five pounds of milk produced, if the cow is on pasture. If not, add another pound. A suggested grain mixture would include: One hundred pounds ground oats, 100 pounds bran, and 50 pounds barley chop. The barley chop should be fed where corn chop cannot be had, or 25 pounds of cottonseed meal may be substituted for the ground oats. If possible, it is a good idea to cut and feed corn or some of the kafirs. They may be cut each day as used.

"Remember," says Toliver, "that a cow producing milk will drink three or four times as much water as a dry cow, and that walking a long distance to and from the water hole takes additional energy as well as reduces the amount of grass consumed. Be sure that the creek has not dried up or that the water hole has not become stagnant and anything but attractive and fresh."

It is deemed advisable to make it a competitive market and information touching on this point will be secured from other cities having market days in the northwest.

"Good Bye, Daddy" by Lawrence Hawthorne

Seems like Daddy never is at home!
He goes to his office every day,
An' he jus' gets back at dinner-time,
Then he hasts hurry right away;
Says he hasts work again tonight,
Or he's got a meetin' at the club,
Or his bowlin' team has got a game
An' the captain says he'll hafta sub.

Even if he plans t' stay right here—
Even then, he hasn't got a chance;
Mother makes 'im take 'er to a show
Or somebody else's house t' dance,
Or they've been invited to a feed,
Or the Bridge Club has a party due . . .
Daddy fusses lots an' tries t' pike,
But he hasts go—an' 'like it, too!

I think Daddy wants t' be with me!
I jus' bet he'd rather play my games
Than t' get dressed-up 'most every night
An' be meetin' folks with funny names!
I jus' bet, if he could have his way,
He'd be home a lot more than he is—
But it looks like everybuddy's plans
Work out best when they are spoilin' his.

DAIRY TALK

INCREASING GRAIN IN DAIRY RATION

Important When Pastures Are Dry in Autumn.

"When the pasture dries up and the grass becomes rather unpalatable, it is time to increase the amount of grain being fed to the dairy cows," says John Toliver, deputy Colorado state dairy commissioner. "It is also advisable to make sure that they have a good supply of fresh water. From 12 to 30 gallons of water are needed by a cow at this time of year, depending upon the size of the cow, the nature of her feed and the state of lactation period."

Too often a close examination of the pasture will reveal far less grass than a glance would indicate. It becomes dry, short and few cows can maintain their body weight, let alone get enough to provide for milk production.

Toliver recommends at least one pound of grain for each five pounds of milk produced, if the cow is on pasture. If not, add another pound. A suggested grain mixture would include: One hundred pounds ground oats, 100 pounds bran, and 50 pounds barley chop. The barley chop should be fed where corn chop cannot be had, or 25 pounds of cottonseed meal may be substituted for the ground oats. If possible, it is a good idea to cut and feed corn or some of the kafirs. They may be cut each day as used.

"Remember," says Toliver, "that a cow producing milk will drink three or four times as much water as a dry cow, and that walking a long distance to and from the water hole takes additional energy as well as reduces the amount of grass consumed. Be sure that the creek has not dried up or that the water hole has not become stagnant and anything but attractive and fresh."

But Not as Slaves
Everybody agrees that children ought to work. From a very early age they should help with the housework and chores, should have responsibility. —Woman's Home Companion.

'HEAT' IS OFF ON LINGLE KILLING, THINKS GANGLAND

SCARFACE AL CAPONE ASSUMES
CONTROL OF ALL CHICAGO
UNDERWORLD

GANGSTERS IN GENERAL "REA- SON THEMSELVES INTO COMPLETE SECURITY"

Chicago, Aug. 11.—(UP)—Exactly nine weeks after Alfred "Jake" Lingle was killed by gangsters in a pedestrian subway, word was reported being "telegraphed" throughout gangland today that the general turmoil which followed had died down and conditions were "returning to normal."

"The 'heat' is off the Lingle killing, it was just another one of those things," the Herald-Examiner, Hearst publication, charged today in an article contending that Alphonse "Scarface Al" Capone had assumed control of all the underworld and that gangsters in general had "reasoned themselves into a sense of complete security."

The wary "down with crime" resounded throughout Chicago after Lingle, a Tribune reporter, was slain. Special investigating bodies were formed, sermons were preached on the subject, the police force was reorganized, huge rewards were offered and official claims were made that "gangland rule has ended."

After Jack Zuta, North side gang lieutenant, was slain at Delafield, Wis., 10 days ago, it became a generally accepted theory Zuta had engineered the Lingle killing and was then killed by his own gangsters because he "talked" to police.

The same night that Zuta was killed, Capone, who had been a close friend of Lingle and an enemy of the North side gang chieftains, returned from Florida. About the same time, George "Bugs" Moran, boss of the Moran-Aiello-Zuta North side combine, was located in Minnesota.

"Capone rules," the Herald-Examiner charged today, contending the resolutions that followed the Lingle murder had been practically forgotten, that Zuta had been removed and Moran driven out of the city, and that Capone had extended his domain to include Moran's old territory.

It's "all for Al and Al for all" and "happy days are here again for gangland," the newspaper charged.

TEMPERATURES ALMOST CHILLY IN MANY AREAS

RAINS FELL SUNDAY IN ILLINOIS,
INDIANA, KENTUCKY, MIS-SOURI, MICHIGAN

RELIEVING SOMEWHAT CRITICAL CONDITIONS OF GRILLING DROUGHT

Chicago, Aug. 11.—(UP)—Temperatures almost chilly in comparison to those during the recent series of heat waves prevailed today in most sections of the country.

Rains fell Sunday in Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky, Missouri and Michigan, relieving somewhat the critical conditions brought about by a drought that in many sections had lasted since July 1.

These rains were, however, too late to make much difference in standing crops, which have been damaged to the extent of millions of dollars.

The effect of the long drought on vegetables and fruits began making itself apparent today as advances in prices were noted on the Chicago market.

In contrast to last week, when 100 degree temperatures were common, such marks were reported yesterday in only two states, Oklahoma and Arkansas. The maximum temperature here was 72; at Washington, 88; Indianapolis, 80; Des Moines, 82; St. Louis, 78; New Orleans, 90; Boise, 82; and San Francisco, 86.

SH-H! WHY BRING THAT UP?

"My husband and I were going out for dinner and I was supervising the children's meal before leaving. Betty Grace, aged four, scrambled into my customary place at the table and motioned her brother to his father's seat opposite. 'You be the papa and I'll be the mamma,' she proposed gaily.

"Imagine my astonishment and dismay at her next words, 'Now, let's argue!'"—G. K. P., in New Outlook.

Overheard

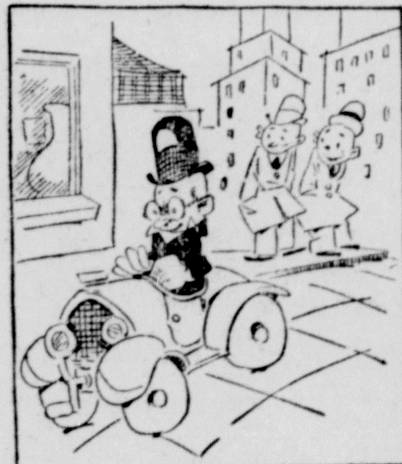

"Whatcher so blue about?"

"My girl has been in the hospital a year."

"Well, you have my sympathy in her prolonged illness."

"But she isn't ill—she's a nurse, and I only get to see her one night a week."

KNOCK PREVENTIVE

"He says no one can speak slightly of his car."

"How come?"

"Because..."

12 WOMEN SHOPPERS INJURED IN A STORE

MORNING SALE

Memphis, Tenn., Aug. 11.—(UP)—Twelve women shoppers and possibly more were injured, several seriously here today when the balcony of Rhoads-Jennings furniture store caved in under the weight of 150 women customers attending a Monday morning sale.

The store was the wildest scene of confusion, police, fire equipment and ambulance equipment responding to the call.

The list of injured was not immediately known and it was indicated it would be some time before all the injured would be moved.

BELIEVE ALLEGED UNDERCOVER MAN SLAIN IN BRAWL

Minneapolis, Aug. 11.—(UP)—Believing that Lawrence Gratz, alleged undercover dry agent, was slain in a brawl, police today pushed a search for witnesses of the quarrel. Gratz's body was found in an alley yesterday. His skull was crushed and a blood-stained rock was found near the body. Police learned that Gratz picked three quarrels successively on a street car Sunday morning and then got off near where his body was found. A. H. Gratz, a brother, told police that Gratz was inclined to be belligerent.

'Imagine my astonishment and dismay at her next words, 'Now, let's argue!'"—G. K. P., in New Outlook.

Minneapolis, Aug. 11.—(U.P.)—Believing that Lawrence Gratz, alleged undercover dry agent, was slain in a brawl, police today pushed a search for witnesses of the quarrel. Marking Historic Spots

HISTORICAL incidents that had an effect on the social, economic and political development of Minnesota are to be obtained from every county of Minnesota to make up the first complete report of its kind ever made of the state.

Willoughby M. Babcock, curator of the State Historical Society Museum, and a state historical survey committee appointed by the executive council of the historical society will start work as soon as representatives have been selected in each county of the state to aid in gathering data.

The survey will include all historical sites, markers and monuments, and local historical societies, which now exists in 20 counties will be invited to assist in the undertaking. The report will be used in marking Minnesota's historic sites, and it will probably be presented to the legislature.

It means much to Crow Wing county where tourists and our own people are taking growing interest in the Indian battlefields of the past, Indian mounds, trails, etc. The tour of the Crow Wing County Historical society to the sites of many of these happenings drew many persons on Monday. Marking these sites will stimulate the curiosity of the tourists and give added interest to lakes, streams, hills and dales which in the past housed historic incidents.

Members of the survey committee appointed by Guy Stanton Ford, president of the State Historical Society, are William E. Culkin of Duluth, chairman; Jefferson Jones of Minneapolis, Mrs. Charles E. Furness of St. Paul, Judge L. B. Kinder of Brainerd, State Treasurer Julius A. Schmahl, J. M. McConnell, state commissioner of education, and Solon J. Buck, superintendent of the historical society.

"Although historical events important in the social, economic and political development of the state have been taking place within the geographical limits of Minnesota for several hundred years, little enough attention has been given to identification of the sites on which they occurred," Mr. Babcock said.

Drought in Kentucky

THE drought has been felt severely in Kentucky, the land famous in the early days before Volstead for its Bourbon whiskey, whose blue grass is famous the world over. There has been but one rain since the month of March and those precious few drops fell in June. The state is hit severely by the drought and it has been felt in the dairy section, farming belt as well as the tobacco districts. The corn crop has been completely ruined. Tobacco, one of the state's main crops, has been cut 50 per cent in yield.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene K. White, who motored to Brainerd from Owensboro, Kentucky, said the sight of the drought operations was sad to see. Even Kentucky's famous blue grass pastures which survived heat in the past, have actually been "burned up." A walk through a blue grass pasture today is like a tramp along a dusty road.

In southern Indiana and Illinois practically the same conditions rule. Up through northern Illinois and southern Wisconsin a slight improvement is noticeable.

The greatest damage from drought will occur and is occurring where dairymen and farmers are compelled to sell their best stock. High grade dairy stock takes long to replace, and the after effects of the drought will be in evidence for years to come.

The water supply of many southern towns has been affected by the drought. Towns in the driest belts are supplying farmers with water to help save their stock.

Something New for Taxpayers

"PAYING taxes should be put upon a monthly basis and become for the homeowner a part of the routine of billpaying along with that of the water rate, the telephone and gas bill and the charge for electric service." That is the pith of a report recently issued by the public relations committee of the United States Building and Loan league, says the Detroit News.

The report, signed by an impressive list of names of financiers and experts in the field of construction financing, defends its thesis by many arguments. The monthly tax payment plan would accord with the present practices in business. If it were more costly of collection, it would not be adopted by commercial interests in general.

It would not require the home-owner to accumulate a surplus during the six or twelve-month period or to scurry about at the last moment to borrow tax money at the bank or among friends to avoid penalty. The present system of annual taxes collected in the fall, the report asserts, is a survival of the time when the country was predominantly agricultural, and the farmers preferred to pay taxes when they sold crops. Today the average family income is received in weekly or monthly installments.

Finally, the report contends, the result of monthly tax dues would be an increased "tax consciousness" which would result in closer citizen supervision of governmental costs. Payment of taxes at frequent intervals would give the government the use of the money and make needless much public borrowing.

More Paving Desired

THE last paving contracts have been so well executed and have so remade the streets covered, that the desire for additional paving has spread to other sections of the city.

There are seemingly enough citizens grouped to head a petition for paving South Ninth street from Laurel south and it is the wish of some of the leaders in the movement to continue such paving to include the circle around the high school.

This would include four blocks on South Ninth street, a block on Pine from Ninth to Broadway and a block on Broadway from Pine to Oak street. Good paving around the high school will relieve congestion on Oak street.

The coming of basketball games at the gymnasium and the many high school and other entertainments in the auditorium makes it imperative that the school board have well paved streets on all sides so that parking may be well distributed. Dirt streets on three sides of the building, as at present, do not make a very good setting for such a modern structure as we now have.

STATE Highway patrolmen keep an eye on motor traffic in the lake region. The other day two State Highway trucks were halted for some infraction of traffic rules.

(By United Press)

Stellar pitching in all National League games featured Sunday's major league results, with three shutouts registered in the six games and a fourth wiped out by a ninth-inning rally.

The St. Louis Cardinals won twice from the Brooklyn Robins, 8-2 and 4-0, and reduced the Robins' National League lead to one game over the Chicago Cubs.

The Chicago Cubs annexed a double-header from the Boston Braves, 6-0 and 11-1. The Phillies also won a double victory, winning from Cincinnati, 18-0 and 4-3.

There were three 5-hit games and one 3-hit turned in by National League pitchers in Sunday's games. Charley Root allowed the Braves but 3 hits in winning the first game. Pat Malone pitched a 5-hit game in winning the second game.

Other 5-hit games were turned in by Claude Willoughby, Phillies right-hander, in blanking the Reds in the first game and Bill Hallahan, Cards' erratic southpaw, who downed Robins, 4-0, in the second game. Hallahan struck out 12 Robins.

Phil Collins, who won his 13th game for the Phillies in the second game against Cincinnati, narrowly missed a shut-out, but, after blanking the Reds for eight innings, weakened and was nipped for three runs in the ninth.

There was some heavy hitting in two of three American League games Sunday. Washington beating Cleveland, 18-6, and the New York Yankees defeating the St. Louis Browns, 14-11. In the other game Earl Whitehill won his 9th straight victory in pitching Detroit to a 4 to 2 victory over the Boston Red Sox.

Sam Jones won his 11th game of the season for the Senators in defeating the Indians. The Senators scored 11 runs in the eighth inning.

Babe Ruth hit his 42nd homer of the season in the Yankees-Browns game, with one man on base. As a result of both Washington and New York victories, the Yankees remained two points behind the second place Senators.

Southampton, Eng., Aug. 11.—(U.P.)—Sir Thomas Lipton, Britain's famous contender for the America's cup, was en route to New York on the Leviathan today, confident that "prospects of success this time are better than ever."

"This time I hope to have back the old mug," Sir Thomas said in discussing the prospects of Shamrock V to beat the best of the United States yachts in the forthcoming races. "It has been away 70 years and I want it to come back for good."

"Prospects for success this time are better than ever. I have a boat which is more up to date. I will be racing off Newport for the first time but I know the locality and shall feel more at home there."

Sir Thomas, who has been ill, said he was improved and that he felt in good condition. He received hundreds of telegrams many from the United States, wishing him luck. His godson, A. J. Lipton Bowker, eight years old, and the boy's four-year-old sister, presented Sir Thomas with a bouquet of carnations and roses on the Leviathan's deck.

PAPER MILL SQUAD DROPE 8-3 GAME AT DOWN RIVER TOWN YESTERDAY

RIPLEY BOYS NOW PLAN TO TAKE HARDING AND CONTINUE WINNING STREAK

The Ft. Ripley baseball team continued its winning streak Sunday by dishing out an 8 to 3 defeat to the Northeast Brainerd Paper Mill team at the Fort grounds.

"Now let's defeat Harding" is the password among the fans at the down river town. The Fort squad is off to Harding next Sunday to make it another win, they hope.

Fort Ripley's hopes scored in every inning but two in yesterday's game. The locals scored in the first and then failed to tally until the ninth when they brought two home.

Anderson's fielding of a hot one in the sixth kept the Brainerd team from scoring. He made a running catch of Stanley's long drive, catching it at his shoelings.

Ebinger replaced Jarboe in the box in the seventh. Hauser, the Fort pitcher, went the full route.

Erickson and J. Stanley handled the reeling in fine shape despite the absence of a stomach protector.

The teams lined up as follows:
Ft. Ripley: Erickson, c; Reed, ss; Tucker, 1b; Hauser, p; Beaumont, 2b; Bratt, 3b; Hanson, rf; Foster, cf; Anderson, lf.

Brainerd: Hegsted, 3b; J. Stanley, c; Rasch, ss; Jarboe, p; Heck, 2b; Skiba, 1b; Schwendemann, lf; Ashley, rf; H. Swearingen, cf; Ebinger, p.

A Keystone Ideal

SHORTSTOP and second base constitute the keystone of a baseball team's defense, and like John McGraw who traded the one-time Giant star "down the river" for Rogers Hornsby, "Mac" thought he got the best of that deal.

However great though "Rajah" was, he was not a team dynamo like his predecessor and soon passed on to Boston. Whenever the usually shrewd "Master Mind" McGraw contemplates Frisch's brilliancy at St. Louis, the Napoleon of baseball must secretly regret that Hornsby swap.

At the start, Gelbert—son and namesake of one of Penn's greatest football ends—was too peppy. He fought the ball, threw too quickly, and overran his hits but his alert intelligence soon curbed those youthful faults until his shortfield play this season has won the outspoken admiration of Frisch, his other team-mates, and the fans.

Not since Ford and Critz sprouted double plays in abundance with the Cincinnati Reds has a better keystone duo been developed than the Cards' present short-and-second combination.

Incidentally, Frisch and Gelbert are hitting well into the .300 class. Their all-round play thus far is one of baseball's most notable features this season.

ROBINS STAGGER UNDER THREE STRAIGHT LOSSES

ST. LOUIS CARDINALS ADMINISTER SETBACK TO BROOKLYN TEAM

NOW FACE LOSS OF THEIR PLACE AT TOP OF THE NATIONAL LEAGUE TODAY

By GEORGE KIRKSEY (United Press Staff Correspondent)

New York, Aug. 11.—The Brooklyn Robins staggering under three straight defeats administered by the St. Louis Cardinals, faced the loss of their place at the top of the National League today.

If the Chicago Cubs win from the Boston Braves and the Robins lose to the Cardinals, the Cubs will gain the National League leadership by one point. The standing in that event would be:

| | W. | L. | Pct. |
|----------|----|----|------|
| Chicago | 65 | 44 | .596 |
| Brooklyn | 68 | 45 | .595 |

In the short space of two days the National League race has been turned topsy-turvy. After Friday's games, Brooklyn held a lead of 3½ games over the Cubs and 5½ games over the third-place New York Giants and had rolled up three straight victories in the west.

After losing a close decision, 4-3, to the Cardinals on Saturday, the Robins reverted to their sixth place form of last year in Sunday's double-header and were beaten twice by St. Louis, 8-2 and 4-0, and had their lead cut to one game over the Cubs.

With the crucial 4-game series against the Cubs opening at Chicago tomorrow, the Robins are now face to face with their most trying situation of the season, and are in no shape for the test.

Bill Clark, Adolfo Luque and Jumbo Elliott, three of the Robins' five leading pitchers, have failed in their last starts, and their hitters folded up against Burleigh Grimes and Bill Hallahan Sunday, making only seven hits off the former and but five off the latter. After scoring in the first two innings of the first game, the Robins were blanked for the next 16 consecutive innings by Grimes and Hallahan.

The Robins filled the bases with only one out in the second inning of the second game but Jake Flowers hit into a double play. In the fourth and fifth innings Hallahan struck out Herman, Wright, Bissonette, Lopez and Bressler in succession.

Six games behind Brooklyn up until last Friday the New York Giants have fought their way back into a dangerous position in the race, by winning three straight games while the Robins were losing three out of four. The Giants have won 16 out of their last 20 games, the best record of the three contenders over that period. The Giants are 3½ games behind the Robins and 2½ games behind the Cubs.

While the Robins and Cubs are engaging in their important series, the Giants stand to improve their position during the 4-game series at Cincinnati, opening Wednesday after an off day tomorrow.

PAPER MILL SQUAD DROPE 8-3 GAME AT DOWN RIVER TOWN YESTERDAY

RIPLEY BOYS NOW PLAN TO TAKE HARDING AND CONTINUE WINNING STREAK

The Ft. Ripley baseball team continued its winning streak Sunday by dishing out an 8 to 3 defeat to the Northeast Brainerd Paper Mill team at the Port grounds.

"Now let's defeat Harding" is the password among the fans at the down river town. The Fort squad is off to Harding next Sunday to make it another win, they hope.

Fort Ripley's hopes scored in every inning but two in yesterday's game. The locals scored in the first and then failed to tally until the ninth when they brought two home.

Anderson's fielding of a hot one in the sixth kept the Brainerd team from scoring. He made a running catch of Stanley's long drive, catching it at his shoestrings.

Ebinger replaced Jarboe in the box in the seventh. Hauser, the Fort pitcher, went the full route.

Erickson and J. Stanley handled the receiving in fine shape despite the absence of a stomach protector.

The teams lined up as follows: Ft. Ripley: Erickson, c; Reed, ss; Tucker, 1b; Hauser, p; Beaumont, 2b; Bratt, 3b; Hanson, rf; Foster, cf; Anderson, lf.

Brainerd: Hogsted, 3b; J. Stanley, c; Rasch, ss; Jarboe, p; Heck, 2b; Skiba, 1b; Schwendemann, lf; Ashley, rf; H. Swearingen, cf; Ebinger, p.

C. C. Plummer, Canadian trap shooting champion and his wife, also a star trapshooter, are visiting their relative, Mrs. A. Hagberg, 624 Norwood street en route to Dayton, Ohio, where Mr. Plummer will compete in the international trap shoot.

Mr. and Mrs. Plummer are from Flin Flon, Manitoba. They are widely known among followers of the traps. Mrs. Plummer lost the Canadian championship for women this year by one point. Her husband finished second in a shoot at Park Rapids yesterday which was won by Captain W. H. Fawcett of Breezy Point lodge.

"Sunday" Not in Bible

The word "Sunday" does not appear in the Bible. This name, given to the first day of the week, is of pagan origin, it being the day anciently dedicated to the sun or to his worship. The word "Sabbath" is listed in the concordances of the American Standard Revised Version 160 times.

Trees From Japan

Trees with fan-shaped leaves that line some Washington streets are ginkgo trees, and are native of China and Japan. Only the staminate form is used in streets and parks, as the pistillate form bears ill-smelling, slippery fruit which is sometimes poisonous to the touch.

Record of the Famous

The publishers of "Who's Who in America" say of it, "Who's Who in America" began to be 'way back in the 90's and the first edition became a reality in 1890. Since then a new edition carefully revised and considerably enlarged has appeared every two years.—Washington Star.

INVITATION

Passing through Chicago on his way home to Topeka, Kan., Vice President Charles Curtis (left) was greeted at the railroad station by Avery Brundage of Chicago, president of the N. A. A. U., and given a complimentary ticket two feet long to the British-American track meet which is to be held in Chicago August 27.

SHORTSTOP and second base of John McGraw" who traded the one-time Giant star "down the river" for Rogers Hornsby. "Mac" thought he got the best of that deal. However great though "Rajah" was, he was not a team dynamo like his predecessor and soon passed on to Boston. Whenever the usually shrewd "Master Mind" McGraw contemplates Frisch's brilliancy at St. Louis, the Napoleon of baseball must secretly regret that Hornsby swap. At the start, Gelbert—son and namesake of one of Penn's greatest football ends—was too peppy. He fought the ball, threw too quickly, and overran his hits but his alert intelligence soon curbed those youthful faults until his shortfield play this season has won the outspoken admiration of Frisch, his other team-mates, and the fans. Not since Ford and Critz sprouted double plays in abundance with the Cincinnati Reds has a better keystone duo been developed than the Cards' present short-and-second combination. Incidentally, Frisch and Gelbert are hitting well into the .300 class. Their all-round play thus far is one of baseball's most notable features this season. WORLD OF LEISURE SEEN BY YEAR 2030

Lord Birkenhead Visions Amazing Progress.

London.—In a new and entertaining book entitled "The World in 2030," Lord Birkenhead, one of England's most original thinkers, plunges deep into the future with prophecies of a world so highly developed as to make the current state of affairs almost unbelievably backward and semi-civilized.

Lord Birkenhead forecasts the coming of a time when this will be a world with plenty of money for all, a world of boundless leisure, synthetic food at ridiculously low prices, week-end skiing excursions from Europe to Labrador and Greenland, of the manufacture of artificial human beings, perhaps on the style of the Frankenstein monster, to relieve the burden of genuine humanity.

Synthetic Food Certain.
"The perfection of the synthetic diet," Lord Birkenhead writes, "cannot be delayed far into the Twenty-first century; and when the first synthetic food factory begins to undercut the prices of naturally-grown food the doom of agriculture will be sealed. Synthetic foods will be much cheaper, more palatable, more various, perhaps more hygienic, than their natural predecessors."

"Therefore they will drive the products of agriculture off the market and ruin the farmers of the world. By the year 2030 synthetic bread, sugar and vegetable substitutes may be cheaper than water is today."

Lord Birkenhead says the world's development since 1890 has been so tremendous that if the progress continues at the same pace the exploitation of new sources of vast power is certain before the expiration of another century.

Points to Travel Possibilities.

He points out that intramolecular energy may transform travel and transport and thus spell the end of the coal age as well as making possible air journeys at 400 miles an hour. He writes:

"The Himalayas are provided by nature with an abundance of waterfalls; capable, when harnessed, of generating vast supplies of electricity. It is probable that before 2030 an intensive industrial life will grow up among the foothills of this mighty range, drawing its life blood in the gorges and ravines of the mountains."

"By 2030 dirt will have disappeared from the ordinary man's experience. Chimneys, blighting vegetation and poisoning the atmosphere with their acrid fumes, will be banished from industry. The machine shop and the foundry of 2030 will be as clean as any bake-shop or dispensary of 1930."

The author believes that in the next century the populations will live in vast blocks of flats, with communal refectories.

Montana Canyon Said to Hold Buried Fortunes

Helena, Mont.—The famous Sun river canyon may hold the secret of at least two buried treasures. The pioneer bandit sheriff, Henry Plumer, is said to have buried a large portion of the Wells-Fargo Express company loot near his Sun river honeymoon cabin. And now it appears an unknown bandit gang may have buried $140,000 in gold within a few miles of the canyon mouth.

Conway Firkins of Fergus Falls, Minn., has come into possession of a map purporting to show the location of a lost treasure.

He said the map came into his possession indirectly from a man who claimed he was the last member of a five-man bandit gang which robbed a guarded gold laden stage in 1882 six miles from the mouth of Sun river canyon. Three bandits were killed, a fourth fatally wounded, and the fifth, according to the story, escaped with the loot which he later buried. To date, authorities have been unable to unearth any record of the holdup.

Boys Free Dog Catchers' Roundup of 19 Canines

Butte, Mont.—"Guess we might as well get that one too," said one dog catcher.

"Sure, let's go," answered the other and the pair turned down the street after a skinking cur, deserting their pound wagon in which were 19 yapping, barking dogs all condemned to die unless somebody produced money for a license.

Eventually the weary dog catchers caught their twentieth dog and returned to the pound wagon, but it was empty.

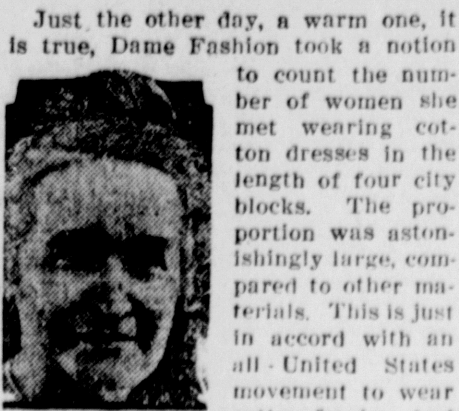

Shrill shouts of juvenile dog lovers and the retreating forms of 19 canines told the tale. Brave little boys had opened the pen and released the captive animals.

Calf Has Two Faces, but Lacks Balance

White Sulphur Springs, Mont.—A little two faced calf on the William Crabtree ranch would be only too willing to trade one for a balance wheel. Apparently healthy in most respects, the animal was born without a sense of balance. Whenever placed on its four gangly legs it topples over. Incidentally, the two faces and almost two heads come in handy at meal time, as the calf can eat equally well with either mouth.

Dame Fashion Smiles

By Grace Jewett Austin

Grace J. Austin.

Just the other day, a warm one, it is true, Dame Fashion took a notion to count the number of women she met wearing cotton dresses in the length of four city blocks. The proportion was astonishingly large, compared to other materials. This is just in accord with an all-United States movement to wear cotton frocks. And this does not mean only for the simplest home and sports frocks. For summer wear at country clubs cotton is distinctly in the mode.

The old-fashioned word "beau" has long been put upon the shelf, though whether a poet might not prefer it to "heavy date" is a question. But the bow made from ribbon or from the material of a gown is decidedly in fashion. All of the little short puffed sleeves, which are one of the season's happy fashions for the young and slender, get an added touch of beauty if there are ribbon bows attached to them. Sometimes black velvet ribbon gives a definite punctuation touch to a pastel shaded gown with such sleeves. There are bows also at the front or side of many a belt in these days, and little bows in rows decorate a number of blouses. Dame Fashion heard lately of one bridal party where the attendants wore yellow chiffon dresses with wide green hats and large green bows on their skirts. So "bows" went to that wedding.

If there is one word appearing in fashion notes at which the great grandmas should sit up and take notice it is this word "mitts." Dame Fashion, who dutifully wore them to Sunday school when a child, has a wonderment whether this restless and firm-grasping generation will make their hands subservient to these lacy fragilities.

People returning from abroad still comment upon the frequency with which black and white combinations are worn. It is an arrangement dear to the French heart, but black and black-and-white were "mourning" for so long in the United States that there is still a touch of melancholy lingering about them.

These "shantung" suits have a great fascination for Dame Fashion, and probably one of these days one will "catch her if she doesn't watch out." A great many of them come in white, with blouses touched with polka dots of color—white being a historic shade in India, where all of the pongees, shantungs and other shot silks grow on their native heath. A missionary once explained to Dame Fashion that India preference for white. The caste that does all the washing for people in India has a knowledge of the most powerful washing powders—ye, possibly? So no matter how beautiful a pink or blue you might choose, the washer-men will be apt to return it to you white. But in our lucky country, the pink and blue and yellow shantungs are safe and lovely.

Once upon a time there was a little cap, and it was worn by peasants only; the simple peasants beloved of artists, who lived in the Basque country of provincial Spain. This little beret cap took a regular Lindbergh flight across the water, and in its simplicity the school children adopted it first. But mother and big sister tried it on—and what astonishing qualities it developed! It is comfortable, immensely becoming to many; reasonable in price, light and imperishable for packing. So the beret seems to be here to stay. Not only for sports; there are evening uses as well. It is made in straw, it is made in silk—and later, it will be made in gold and silver.

Dairy Notes

Fall-born calves are ready to put in the pasture the following spring.

With low dairy prices, only the heifers from best dairy cows should be kept.

Keeping the manure hauled out from now on will greatly aid in holding down the fly population.

Cows need grain and hay as the pastures become short. It does not pay to allow them to lose flesh and drop in production.

Cows getting less protein in the roughage, as when they are fed silage plus a legume hay, need from 16 to 17 per cent of digestible protein in their grain.

An excellent fitting ration for the dry cow consists of 100 pounds of corn, cane or kafir grain; 100 pounds of oats; 100 pounds of bran, and 75 pounds of oil meal.

If feed is scarce, it is better to sell a few cows than to short-feed the entire herd. More milk, and not less, will result and the profits on the remaining cows will be increased.

The amount of protein necessary in a grain mixture for dairy cows depends to a great extent on the kind of hay fed. With alfalfa hay use a grain mixture containing about 16 per cent of crude digestible protein.

Progressive dairymen are learning that it pays to feed cows well through the summer.

A suitable grain ration may be made of equal parts of ground oats and barley with 10 per cent of oil meal added.

Silage is an excellent roughage for dairy cows. Its succulence makes it especially desirable, but it is well to remember that it is very low in protein. Alfalfa hay or grain containing protein feeds would be used to supplement the silage.

Value of Glucose

Glucose is used in the manufacture of confections to prevent crystallization.

Prevent Cowpox Spread by Careful Treatment

Cowpox has to run its course, but should clear up in about 20 days. The chief object in treatment should be to prevent spread of the infection to other cows and infection of the sores by germs from the floor or ground.

The infection is readily carried from cow to cow by the milkmaid's hands. Isolate affected cows and have them milked by a person who does not milk other cows. Keep the stall floors clean and milk with clean hands. For five minutes, twice daily, immerse the sore teats in hot water containing all the boric acid it will dissolve, then dry gently and apply a paste composed of one dram each of powdered boric acid and bismuth subnitrate per ounce of cold pressed castor oil. If any sore then is obstinate in healing, apply strong iodine ointment once or twice daily. If a milking tube must be used to draw off the milk, cleanse and sterilize it by boiling for 15 minutes each time before use.

Profusion of Divinities

The ancient Greeks worshiped more than 30,000 gods. Indian divinities number more than 33,000.

Crisp Frock Designed for Morning, Afternoon

The frock illustrated is very effective if made in white batiste printed with tiny polkadots that Paris endorsed this year (light blue, green or red dots). The binding of course should match the dots in color—and gives a charming summery effect. An easily wearable style allows the sash to be placed where you will, high or low. The skirt looks paneled but it is really pleated with bound edges and the result is most graceful. The frock is equally effective if made with a wide bertha collar, with a little bow and no sleeves or with a narrow collar and tie with short puff sleeves. Equally well suited to morning or afternoon, it is crisp-looking and cool-feeling and it washes superbly.—Woman's Home Companion.

Even Language Changes as Modes Go Feminine

Words that have been out of use among women during the flapper age are reappearing, and notable changes of language are coming with the new fashions of the season.

For nearly a decade women have scorned to use "pretty," "quaint," "sweet" or "lovely" in describing the clothes they have seen or intend to buy. Now the words are appearing everywhere, New York shop keepers told the woman's editor of the Country Home.

Moreover, girls are revising the flapper names they used to bear proudly to fit the new feminine note that comes so decidedly into the realm of fashions. A third New York reaction to the new fashions in clothes is a revolt against the appearance of efficiency for women in offices, the editor discovered in a thorough survey.

"One girl," says the article, "who was getting a permanent wave after wearing her hair straight for several years, told the hairdresser that straight hair made her look too efficient. She wanted to look less efficient than she is."

"Another girl, christened Alexandria, was found begging her friends to call her 'Alix,' if they must give her a nickname. Throughout the flapper age, she reveled in being called 'Sandy,' but it's too tomboyish now, she declared, to fit in with the frilly, more sedate clothes of the present season."

"As for the descriptive words in the world of clothes, which formerly were considered mid-Victorian, women now love to have adjectives applied to them that are as far as possible from being masculine."

As for the styles themselves, dealers declare, silks merely start the ball rolling and the highest, gayest bounces are achieved by cottons and linens. "Pretty," "sweet" and "quaint" and other feminine adjectives have been called into play to express views of smart fabrics that a short time ago were reserved for utility purposes alone. Even Paris, where hot-weather materials are not so much needed as in the many hot sections of America, have swung to these "quaint" fabrics.

Finally, fashion experts declare, according to the article, the last masculine trace in women has disappeared with the new lines for frocks, which can only be thought of in terms of ruffles and circular effects. Moreover, they add, the new language and new styles are being supplemented by the return of other feminine graces that so long have been scorned.

Youngsters' Shoes Along Styles for Grown-Ups

The children of today do not have to yearn to wear grown-up clothes as the children of yesterday did. Quite to the contrary, they have miniature versions of all the smartest fashions that their elders wear. Little boys look like small editions of their fathers while little girls are dressed as naive counterparts of their sophisticated mothers.

And now even shoes take up the theme of being "grown-upish." Dad's golf shoes are copied for young son's play shoes—and small sister disdains a pair of Sunday bests which do not have an applique similar to that on mother's new shoes. Yet even though younger fashions follow in sophisticated footsteps, they retain the simplicity which has ever been the keynote of youthful good taste.

An Elevator Girl

By RUBY DOUGLAS

(Copyright.)

"THIS girl is employed because she is courteous, helpful and intelligent. Anything she can do to assist you she will gladly do."

Mary read the sign above the elevator door. "Courteous, helpful, intelligent," she repeated. "Well—I think I could qualify."

She let her eyes fall on the young woman who was running the lift up and down in the crowded department store. The efforts did not seem much. It would take a little practice to be able to stop just at the right place, she decided. It would take a little concentration to remember what articles were sold on each of the eight floors but she believed she could hold such a position.

Ever since the automobile accident in which her brother had been so badly injured that he was still unable to work, Mary had been wondering what sort of employment she could get to help augment her widowed mother's not too large income in caring for the big family of children. Before the accident, Mary's most helpful place had seemed to be at home, helping to care for the children. Things were different now.

It was the busy season and Mary found no difficulty in getting a position. Inside of a few days she was dressed in the becoming gray uniform of the shop employees and was doing duty in the easily running elevator.

Mary tried to live up to the sign. She was always helpful and she used her intelligence. Even when the car was crowded and shoppers crowded and pushed and fussed and complained, she always tried to retain her courteous manner.

One Saturday afternoon she had an experience that proved her kindness and, in a roundabout way, added to the family income.

The elevator was half full and at the rear stood a tall, pale man with a child in his arms. The child might have been two or three years old and was able to walk, but was frightened at the motion of the elevator and screamed and clung to its father. They were going up several floors and the continual crying and screaming annoyed an irritable woman who, also, was going to a top floor.

"That child should be at home with its mother instead of making every one in the store uncomfortable," the woman said, losing her temper.

The pale and very much worried father said quietly, "The child has no mother."

There was dead silence in the little car.

When they reached the top floor, Mary stopped her car and stepped out after the man and the child.

"My rest hour comes in a few minutes. Won't you let me take the little one with me while you do your errands?" she asked.

The man's face lighted up. "Oh, you are too kind," he said.

But Mary, accustomed to children, insisted, and it was not long before she had the little girl sitting comfortably in the restroom looking at a book. She had learned from the man that his wife had been dead only a short time and he had not yet decided on what to do with the child. They were strangers in the country from England and it was a difficult problem.

During her rest hour Mary had an inspiration. Why not ask her mother why she could not take care of the little one for awhile?

She worked out the idea in her mind and presented it to the man.

"I—I don't like to be separated from her. She is all I have now," he explained at length. "Might I see you again in a day or two after we have all thought it over?" The man had an attractive accent and his plight was pitiable.

Mary's mother was only too glad to take in the man and his baby. The only man in the house was her disabled son, now, and it would mean an added income and perhaps congenial companionship.

Tom Elson—for that was the man's name—proved to be a very quiet man and Mary and her mother fell in love with his tiny daughter. She played with the older children and was well behaved.

On Saturday afternoons, after awhile, the father got into the habit of going home by way of the shop where he had first seen Mary.

"Mary," he said to her one afternoon a year after he had gone to live with them, "would you mind my telling you what I think that sign in your elevator ought to read?"

"No," said Mary, "of course not."

"It should say, 'This girl was employed because she is beautiful, lovable—and wonderful!'"

Mary was lost for a reply.

Tom was a little afraid of what he had said. They were both silent for awhile.

"I know it seems very soon for me to tell you I love you, Mary—but—"

Mary looked at him. "But you do, Tom. I have known it for a long time and we are going to tell mother about it and—"

"And it will be all right—won't it, dear?" he asked.

By the time they reached home they had worked it all out so as to find happiness for themselves and yet make no one else less comfortable.

But mother and big sister tried it on—and what astonishing qualities it developed! It is comfortable, immensely becoming to many; reasonable in price, light and imperishable for packing. So the beret seems to be here to stay. Not only for sports; there are evening uses as well. It is made in straw, it is made in silk—and later, it will be made in gold and silver.

Dairy Notes

Fall-born calves are ready to put in the pasture the following spring.

With low dairy prices, only the heifers from best dairy cows should be kept.

Keeping the manure hauled out from now on will greatly aid in holding down the fly population.

Cows need grain and hay as the pastures become short. It does not pay to allow them to lose flesh and drop in production.

Cows getting less protein in the roughage, as when they are fed silage plus a legume hay, need from 16 to 17 per cent of digestible protein in their grain.

An excellent fitting ration for the dry cow consists of 100 pounds of corn, cane or kafir grain; 100 pounds of oats; 100 pounds of bran, and 75 pounds of oil meal.

If feed is scarce, it is better to sell a few cows than to short-feed the entire herd. More milk, and not less, will result and the profits on the remaining cows will be increased.

The amount of protein necessary in a grain mixture for dairy cows depends to a great extent on the kind of hay fed. With alfalfa hay use a grain mixture containing about 16 per cent of crude digestible protein.

Progressive dairymen are learning that it pays to feed cows well through the summer.

A suitable grain ration may be made of equal parts of ground oats and barley with 10 per cent of oil meal added.

Silage is an excellent roughage for dairy cows. Its succulence makes it especially desirable, but it is well to remember that it is very low in protein. Alfalfa hay or grain containing protein feeds would be used to supplement the silage.

Value of Glucose

Glucose is used in the manufacture of confections to prevent crystallization.

Prevent Cowpox Spread by Careful Treatment

Cowpox has to run its course, but should clear up in about 20 days. The chief object in treatment should be to prevent spread of the infection to other cows and infection of the sores by germs from the floor or ground. The infection is readily carried from cow to cow by the milkmaid's hands. Isolate affected cows and have them milked by a person who does not milk other cows. Keep the stall floors clean and milk with clean hands. For five minutes, twice daily, immerse the sore teats in hot water containing all the boric acid it will dissolve, then dry gently and apply a paste composed of one dram each of powdered boric acid and bismuth subnitrate per ounce of cold pressed castor oil. If any sore then is obstinate in healing, apply strong iodine ointment once or twice daily. If a milking tube must be used to draw off the milk, cleanse and sterilize it by boiling for 15 minutes each time before use.

Profusion of Divinities

The ancient Greeks worshiped more than 30,000 gods. Indian divinities number more than 33,000.

Crisp Frock Designed for Morning, Afternoon

The frock illustrated is very effective if made in white batiste printed with tiny polkadots that Paris endorsed this year (light blue, green or red dots). The binding of course should match the dots in color—and gives a charming summery effect. An easily wearable style allows the sash to be placed where you will, high or low. The skirt looks paneled but it is really pleated with bound edges and the result is most graceful. The frock is equally effective if made with a wide bertha collar, with a little bow and no sleeves or with a narrow collar and tie with short puff sleeves. Equally well suited to morning or afternoon, it is crisp-looking and cool-feeling and it washes superbly.—Woman's Home Companion.

Even Language Changes as Modes Go Feminine

Words that have been out of use among women during the flapper age are reappearing, and notable changes of language are coming with the new fashions of the season.

For nearly a decade women have scorned to use "pretty," "quaint," "sweet" or "lovely" in describing the clothes they have seen or intend to buy. Now the words are appearing everywhere, New York shop keepers told the woman's editor of the Country Home.

Moreover, girls are revising the flapper names they used to bear proudly to fit the new feminine note that comes so decidedly into the realm of fashions. A third New York reaction to the new fashions in clothes is a revolt against the appearance of efficiency for women in offices, the editor discovered in a thorough survey.

"One girl," says the article, "who was getting a permanent wave after wearing her hair straight for several years, told the hairdresser that straight hair made her look too efficient. She wanted to look less efficient than she is."

"Another girl, christened Alexandria, was found begging her friends to call her 'Alix,' if they must give her a nickname. Throughout the flapper age, she reveled in being called 'Sandy,' but it's too tomboyish now, she declared, to fit in with the frilly, more sedate clothes of the present season."

"As for the descriptive words in the world of clothes, which formerly were considered mid-Victorian, women now love to have adjectives applied to them that are as far as possible from being masculine."

As for the styles themselves, dealers declare, silks merely start the ball rolling and the highest, gayest bounces are achieved by cottons and linens. "Pretty," "sweet" and "quaint" and other feminine adjectives have been called into play to express views of smart fabrics that a short time ago were reserved for utility purposes alone. Even Paris, where hot-weather materials are not so much needed as in the many hot sections of America, have swung to these "quaint" fabrics.

Finally, fashion experts declare, according to the article, the last masculine trace in women has disappeared with the new lines for frocks, which can only be thought of in terms of ruffles and circular effects. Moreover, they add, the new language and new styles are being supplemented by the return of other feminine graces that so long have been scorned.

Youngsters' Shoes Along Styles for Grown-Ups

The children of today do not have to yearn to wear grown-up clothes as the children of yesterday did. Quite to the contrary, they have miniature versions of all the smartest fashions that their elders wear. Little boys look like small editions of their fathers while little girls are dressed as naive counterparts of their sophisticated mothers.

And now even shoes take up the theme of being "grown-upish." Dad's golf shoes are copied for young son's play shoes—and small sister disdains a pair of Sunday bests which do not have an applique similar to that on mother's new shoes. Yet even though younger fashions follow in sophisticated footsteps, they retain the simplicity which has ever been the keynote of youthful good taste.

An Elevator Girl

By RUBY DOUGLAS

(Copyright.)

"THIS girl is employed because she is courteous, helpful and intelligent. Anything she can do to assist you she will gladly do."

Mary read the sign above the elevator door, "Courteous, helpful, intelligent," she repeated. "Well—I think I could qualify."

She let her eyes fall on the young woman who was running the lift up and down in the crowded department store. The efforts did not seem much. It would take a little practice to be able to stop just at the right place, she decided. It would take a little concentration to remember what articles were sold on each of the eight floors but she believed she could hold such a position.

Ever since the automobile accident in which her brother had been so badly injured that he was still unable to work, Mary had been wondering what sort of employment she could get to help augment her widowed mother's not too large income in caring for the big family of children. Before the accident, Mary's most helpful place had seemed to be at home, helping to care for the children. Things were different now.

It was the busy season and Mary found no difficulty in getting a position. Inside of a few days she was dressed in the becoming gray uniform of the shop employees and was doing duty in the easily running elevator.

Mary tried to live up to the sign. She was always helpful and she used her intelligence. Even when the car was crowded and shoppers crowded and pushed and fussed and complained, she always tried to retain her courteous manner.

One Saturday afternoon she had an experience that proved her kindness and, in a roundabout way, added to the family income.

The elevator was half full and at the rear stood a tall, pale man with a child in his arms. The child might have been two or three years old and was able to walk, but was frightened at the motion of the elevator and screamed and clung to its father. They were going up several floors and the continual crying and screaming annoyed an irritable woman who, also, was going to a top floor.

"That child should be at home with its mother instead of making every one in the store uncomfortable," the woman said, losing her temper.

The pale and very much worried father said quietly, "The child has no mother."

There was dead silence in the little car.

When they reached the top floor, Mary stopped her car and stepped out after the man and the child.

"My rest hour comes in a few minutes. Won't you let me take the little one with me while you do your errands?" she asked.

The man's face lighted up. "Oh, you are too kind," he said.

But Mary, accustomed to children, insisted, and it was not long before she had the little girl sitting comfortably in the restroom looking at a book. She had learned from the man that his wife had been dead only a short time and he had not yet decided on what to do with the child. They were strangers in the country from England and it was a difficult problem.

During her rest hour Mary had an inspiration. Why not ask her mother why she could not take care of the little one for awhile?

She worked out the idea in her mind and presented it to the man.

"I—I don't like to be separated from her. She is all I have now," he explained at length. "Might I see you again in a day or two after we have all thought it over?" The man had an attractive accent and his plight was pitiable.

Mary's mother was only too glad to take in the man and his baby. The only man in the house was her disabled son, now, and it would mean an added income and perhaps congenial companionship.

Tom Elson—for that was the man's name—proved to be a very quiet man and Mary and her mother fell in love with his tiny daughter. She played with the older children and was well behaved.

On Saturday afternoons, after awhile, the father got into the habit of going home by way of the shop where he had first seen Mary.

"Mary," he said to her one afternoon a year after he had gone to live with them, "would you mind my telling you what I think that sign in your elevator ought to read?"

"No," said Mary, "of course not." "It should say, 'This girl is employed because she is beautiful, lovable—and wonderful.'"

Mary was lost for a reply. Tom was a little afraid of what he had said. They were both silent for awhile.

"I know it seems very soon for me to tell you I love you, Mary—but—" Mary looked at him. "But you do, Tom. I have known it for a long time and we are going to tell mother about it and—"

"And it will be all right—won't it, dear?" he asked.

By the time they reached home they had worked it all out so as to find happiness for themselves and yet make no one else less comfortable.

DR. PHIL SHERIDAN ADDRESSES ROTARY

Former Governor of Ninth District
Speaks of Promoting Friendship
Among Neighboring Nations

REMOVING DIFFERENCES

Ascertaining Causes of International
Discord, Promoting Understanding,
Justice, Goodwill

Dr. G. Phil Sheridan, pastor of a large Congregational church in Rochester and Past District Governor of the Ninth District International Rotary addressed Rotarians and their friends last meeting on the topic of promoting friendship among neighboring nations.

"To do this," said Rev. Sheridan, "it is necessary to ascertain the causes of international discord and to aid its removal by promoting understanding, justice and goodwill among all people."

International service by Rotary is nothing new. As early as 1905 Former International President Paul Harris believed that Rotary's circle of influence would extend to the ends of the earth. In 1912 Rotary became international in aspect when Canada was added to the jurisdiction.

Friendship and business justice are important factors in cementing good feeling with nations. A nation as a government or its citizens cannot invest capital in a foreign country without being concerned. Twenty-four American companies are now working in the land of the Russian Soviet, said the speaker.

Rev. Sheridan mentioned many ways in which the study of international relations can be made a most profitable and interesting one in any club.

President Hal Day referred to the death of A. G. Trommald, long a member of Rotary and Past President of the city of Brainerd, who died last week. Mr. Trommald's public and patriotic spirit and his love for the organization.

Rev. N. P. Olmsted, in charge of the program, introduced Miss Bernice Lemire of Pillager and her instructor, Mrs. W. A. M. Johnstone, and Miss Lemire gave two fine piano solos revealing her outstanding musicianship and technique.

DIVORCEE TURNS GAY IN NORMA'S NEW SHOW

Norma Shearer, popularly referred to as "The Divorcee" because of her recent film success by that name comes to the Paramount theatre today for three days in the film version of "Let Us Be Gay." New York stage play.

As the Kitty Brown who turns from a plain wife into a stunning and smart woman of the world and finds it becoming to her personality, Norma Shearer seems "more charming than ever." As Bob Brown, the wayward husband, who marries, divorces and then courts his ex-wife all over again, Rod La Rocque is convincing and believable.

Marie Dressler plays the gay old dowager. Here is a role right up Miss Dressler's alley, another excellent characterization for the screen's inimitable comedienne. Others in the cast include Raymond Hackett, Hedda Hopper and Sally Eilers.

NEW FIRES FLARE IN DRY AREA HERE

Several New Peat Fires and One Large
Highland Fire Burning
But Under Control

ADDITIONAL MEN PUT ON

Every Cigarette or Cigar Tossed in Forest or Brush Land
is Potential Hazard

Several new fires sprung up in this territory yesterday, a small peat fire in section 3 of Ft. Ripley township, another peat fire in section 28 of Platte Lake township and a large highland fire on section 3 of Sylvan township.

The fires are under control but much difficulty is found in putting the fires entirely out on account of the extreme dryness of peat, old stumps and logs. Additional men have been put on duty by the Minnesota Forestry Department here. With the humidity ranging between 30 and 40 degrees for almost a week, every cigarette or cigar tossed in the forest or brush land is a potential fire hazard, E. H. Rhodes district forest ranger said today.

N. P. ASKS FOR RAIL REGULATION ON FEEDING CATTLE

St. Paul, Aug. 11.—(UP)—The Northern Pacific today requested the Interstate Commerce commission to grant permission that cattle from Montana be allowed stopover for feeding in Minnesota and North Dakota.

If the request is granted, L. R. Capron, freight traffic manager of the road said, livestock growers will be enabled to ship their stock to points in these two states with "stopover privileges" for feeding.

"While the stock growers of Montana are not destitute by any means, an arrangement as requested will be of tremendous advantage to them. Their stock can't be fattened on the ranges of Montana this fall and feed will be scarce," Capron said.

9-YEAR-OLD FIRE BUG TAKEN AT DUNCAN, OKLA.

Duncan, Okla., Aug. 11.—(UP)—Eldoris Taylor, 9-year-old fire bug who "simply hates china stores," commenced serving a 12-year sentence in Pauls Valley reformatory today.

The red, freckled faced boy was arrested Saturday night while "enjoying" six fires he had set in an effort to "burn the blamed town." He set fire to his home first. Then he fired a lumber yard which burned with a loss of $75,000. Because he believed china stores were not good for a community and "didn't pay their share of the taxes," he set fire to two china stores. He protested being taken to the reformatory because he liked the jail food here. The jailer said the boy consumed more food than any man in the jail yesterday.

He admitted to County Judge J. W. Scott today that he set fire to the lumber yard. He was sentenced to the reformatory until he is 21 years old.

DR. PHIL SHERIDAN ADDRESSES ROTARY

Former Governor of Ninth District
Speaks of Promoting Friendship
Among Neighboring Nations
REMOVING DIFFERENCES
Ascertaining Causes of International
Discord, Promoting Understanding, Justice, Goodwill

Dr. G. Phil Sheridan, pastor of a large Congregational church in Rochester and Past District Governor of the Ninth District International Rotary addressed Rotarians and their friends last meeting on the topic of promoting friendship among neighboring nations.

"To do this," said Rev. Sheridan, "it is necessary to ascertain the causes of international discord and to aid its removal by promoting understanding, justice and goodwill among all people."

International service by Rotary is nothing new. As early as 1905 Former International President Paul Harris believed that Rotary's circle of influence would extend to the ends of the earth. In 1912 Rotary became international in aspect when Canada was added to the jurisdiction.

Friendship and business justice are important factors in cementing good feeling with nations. A nation as a government or its citizens cannot in capital in a foreign country without being concerned. Twenty-four American companies are now working in the land of the Russian Soviet, said the speaker.

Rev. Sheridan mentioned many ways in which the study of international relations can be made a most profitable and interesting one in any club.

President Hal Day referred to the death of A. G. Trommald, long a member of Rotary and Past President Walter F. Wieland gave a eulogy, recounting many experiences which showed Mr. Trommald's public and patriotic spirit and his love for the organization.

Rev. N. P. Olmsted, in charge of the program, introduced Miss Bernice Lemire of Pillager and her instructor Mrs. W. A. M. Johnstone, and Miss Lemire gave two fine piano solos revealing her outstanding musicianship and technique.

TWO TRUCKS COLLIDE ON LAUREL AND FIFTH

Two trucks came together on the intersection of Laurel and Fifth streets this morning at 10 o'clock. The truck of the Russell Creamery Co. driven by Earl Brandow was struck in the side as it attempted to make a U turn. The truck that collided with it was driven by R. H. Wareing, an employee of the Brainerd-Pine Beach hotel. Both vehicles received damaged fenders. Several milk bottles were broken in the creamery truck, milk flowing over the street.

The new systems increase the number of channels between points of conversation, making it possible for several additional conversations to take place on the same wire without disturbance.

DIVORCEE TURNS GAY IN NORMA'S NEW SHOW

Norma Shearer, popularly referred to as "The Divorcee" because of her recent film success by that name comes to the Paramount theatre today for three days in the film version of "Let Us Be Gay," New York stage play.

As the Kitty Brown who turns from a plain wife into a stunning and smart woman of the world and finds it becoming to her personality, Norma Shearer seems more charming than ever. As Bob Brown, the wayward husband, who marries, divorces and then courts his ex-wife all over again, Rod La Rocque is convincing and believable.

Marie Dressler plays the gay old dowager. Here is a role right up Miss Dressler's alley, another excellent characterization for the screen's inimitable comedienne. Others in the cast include Raymond Hackett, Hedda Hopper and Sally Eilers.

NEW FIRES FLARE IN DRY AREA HERE

Several New Peat Fires and One Large
Highland Fire Burning
But Under Control

ADDITIONAL MEN PUT ON

Every Cigarette or Cigar Tossed in Forest or Brush Land
is Potential Hazard

Several new fires sprung up in this territory yesterday, a small peat fire in section 3 of Ft. Ripley township, another peat fire in section 28 of Platte Lake township and a large highland fire on section 3 of Sylvan township. The fires are under control but much difficulty is found in putting the fires entirely out on account of the extreme dryness of peat, old stumps and logs.

Additional men have been put on duty by the Minnesota Forestry Department here. With the humidity ranging between 30 and 40 degrees for almost a week, every cigarette or cigar tossed in the forest or brush land is a potential fire hazard, E. H. Rhodes district forest ranger said today.

N. P. ASKS FOR RAIL REGULATION ON FEEDING CATTLE

St. Paul, Aug. 11.—(UP)—The Northern Pacific today requested the Interstate Commerce commission to grant permission that cattle from Montana be allowed stopover for feeding in Minnesota and North Dakota.

If the request is granted, L. R. Capron, freight traffic manager of the road said, livestock growers will be enabled to ship their stock to points in these two states with "stopover privileges" for feeding.

"While the stock growers of Montana are not desirous by any means of an arrangement as requested will be of tremendous advantage to them. Their stock can't be fattened on the ranges of Montana this fall and feed will be scarce," Capron said.

9-YEAR-OLD FIRE BUG TAKEN AT DUNCAN, OKLA.

Duncan, Okla., Aug. 11.—(UP)—Eldoris Taylor, 9-year-old fire bug who "simply hates china stores," commenced serving a 12-year sentence in Pauls Valley reformatory today.

The red, freckled faced boy was arrested Saturday night while "enjoying" six fires he had set in an effort to "burn the blamed town." He set fire to his home first. Then he fired a lumber yard which burned with a loss of $75,000. Because he believed china stores were not good for a community and "didn't pay their share of the taxes," he set fire to two china stores.

He protested being taken to the reformatory because he liked the jail food here. The jailer said the boy consumed more food than any man in the jail yesterday.

He admitted to County Judge J. W. Scott today that he set fire to the lumber yard. He was sentenced to the reformatory until he is 21 years old.

Trec Freak

Howard L. Cox, of Tulare, Calif., has discovered a phenomenon of nature in a locust tree in the Tulare city park. Growing out of the tree is an almond sapling. "WHEN THE FAMILY?"

by C. WELLS

CHAPTER XXXVII.
REMARKABLE letter.
"A," he said, cryptically, as he refolded it and put it in his pocket. "A very remarkable letter."
"Is it from the kidnaper, really?" asked Aunt Judy, wishing this queer man would talk more freely.
"It may be," he said. "It's one of those things that will take some thinking over. But I can tell you this, right now, there will be no one to meet you at the try-st night at midnight."
Abel Collins said, "I told you so!" right out loud, and the others smiled and looked the same message.
Everett Craven, who had not seen the note, asked for a perusal, and Stone handed it to him, watching the lawyer's face as he read the lines.
But Craven showed no ulterior knowledge, and not much interest as he returned it, saying:
"How can you tell it's a fake? To me it looks perfectly all right. Why didn't the kidnaper write it?"
"Mr. Craven, the first thing a detective has to learn is to distinguish between a true communication and a spurious one."
"Yes? Go on."
"I am not giving a lecture on first lessons in sleuthing, but I will tell you one or two fundamental rules. A kidnaper is almost invariably an illiterate man. This isn't a theory, it is a proved fact. Therefore, a note from a kidnaper concerning ransom, would nine times out of ten, be more or less illiterate in language or penmanship. The typewriter does away with poor penmanship, of course. But grammar remains. Now, the experienced detective can tell real lapses from grammar as differentiated from pretended lapses. That note, illiterate though it sounds, was not written by an ignoramus, but by one who pretends to be an ignoramus. First of all, there is not probably a human being in the United States today, who writes the personal pronoun I with a small letter. Children go to school long enough to learn that, however soon they may leave school after. The same with the other capitals. Anyone who can use a typewriter at all, knows the capital shift, and anyone who could compose that letter, which is fairly well made up, is not so ignorant as to write 'Miller' with a small m. Pretended illiteracy is one of the easiest frauds to discover that I know of."
"Then why was the letter written at all?" asked Sayre.
"There are several answers to that; the right one, I do not yet know. As to going to the Miller house at midnight, go if you like, Mrs. Bell. I feel sure there will be nobody there, but if there is, and if you present him with ten thousand dollars, remember that it is a present. You will get no returns for it."
"But he says he will give me back my niece—and he spelled 'niece' wrong!"
"Niece is a tricky word," he said, a slight twinkle in his eye. "It may well be that the writer of that letter didn't know how to spell it himself."
"Wasn't it right?" said Betty, taking the paper to look at, and speaking so innocently that they had to laugh.
"You see," said Stone. "I think that word can't be counted one way or another, for or against the writer who wants us to think him a numskull."
"The way you put it," Aunt

Judy thought, "I wonder what he is going to do with that letter?"
"I don't know," said Stone. "But, we must have a strategy planned. For my deductions from the letter may be all wrong, and the miscreant may bob up serenely after all. I propose that we dress up some man in some of Mrs. Bell's costumes and send him out there at the witching hour, so as to be on the safe side."
Then the thing to do, said Pete Gibby, "is to pick the chap who's nearest the lady in size and also the best looking. I offer my services."
They laughed at his words, but Stone looked at him appraisingly and said:
"You're the one for it, my lad. Don't take the lady's best clothes. No, there may be a scrimmage, and Pete smiled at the thought.
After some further talk over the matter, Abel Collins and Lawyer Craven went home, assuring the detective that they would be at his call at any time if needed.
It was after eleven, so the family set about rigging Pete up in a gown, coat, and hat of Aunt Judy's. Betty cleverly fashioned window, and Sayre from another. Stone threw himself on a couch in his sitting room, knowing he would be called if anything happened.

He thought over the knowledge of the case he had gleaned that evening, and tabulated the information in his methodical mind.
Then he heard Betty's flying feet on the stairs, and he knew the farce, as he felt sure it would be, was over.
As Gibby was coming in the front door, Stone joined the group in time to hear him say: "Sat there an hour, and not a darned soul showed up! Gimme a drink!"
Monday morning Fleming Stone came down to the dining room in a hopeful frame of mind, and announced the fact.
"Why are you hopeful?" queried Pete, not with undue curiosity, but with deep interest.
"First, because I feel pretty sure we'll get Miss Duane back, and, too, because I hope to track down the villain who is responsible for her absence."
"Have you any idea who he is?"
"Frankly, no. But I hope to a wig, whose curls of cotton wool were so realistic that Aunt Judy declared she should sometimes wear it herself when her hair wasn't curled.

Pete carried no ten thousand dollars, but he carried a serviceable automatic, which he hoped he should have no occasion to use.
He was all ready some time before the witching hour, and declared he meant to start at once and await developments at the try-st.
They watched him from between half-closed blinds as he made his way down the park of Knollwood and out to the road. Along the footpath they could follow the cloaked figure, across the bridge of the big ravine, and then Pete turned in at the Miller house and the watchers lost sight of him.
They went to their rooms, but no one undressed, for they must know the result of the expedition.
The time passed slowly, Betty and Aunt Judy watching from one

Hopes of Round-the-World Flight Fade

"WHERE'S MY FAMILY?"

by C. WELLS

CHAPTER XXXVII.

"A REMARKABLE letter," he said, cryptically, as he refolded it and put it in his pocket. "A very remarkable letter."

"Is it from the kidnaper, really?" asked Aunt Judy, wishing this queer man would talk more freely. "It may be," he said. "It's one of those things that will take some thinking over. But I can tell you this, right now, there will be no one to meet you at the try-out night at midnight."

Abel Collins said, "I told you so!" right out loud, and the others smiled and looked the same message.

Everett Craven, who had not seen the note, asked for a perusal, and Stone handed it to him, watching the lawyer's face as he read the lines.

But Craven showed no ulterior knowledge, and not much interest as he returned it, saying: "How can you all tell it's a fake? To me it looks perfectly all right. Why didn't the kidnaper write it?"

"Mr. Craven, the first thing a detective has to learn is to distinguish between a true communication and a spurious one."

"Yes? Go on."

"I am not giving a lecture on first lessons in sleuthing, but I will tell you one or two fundamental rules. A kidnaper is almost invariably an illiterate man. This isn't a theory, it is a proved fact. Therefore, a note from a kidnaper concerning ransom, would nine times out of ten, be more or less illiterate in language or penmanship. The typewriter does away with poor penmanship, of course. But grammar remains. Now, the experienced detective can tell real lapses from grammar as differentiated from pretended lapses. That note, illiterate though it sounds, was not written by an ignoramus, but by one who pretends to be an ignoramus. First of all, there is not probably a human being in the United States today, who writes the personal pronoun 'I' with a small letter. Children go to school long enough to learn that, however soon they may leave school after. The same with the other capitals. Anyone who can use a typewriter at all, knows the capital shift, and anyone who could compose that letter, which is fairly well made up, is not so ignorant as to write 'Miller' with a small m. Pretended illiteracy is one of the easiest frauds to discover that I know of."

"Then why was the letter written at all?" asked Sayre.

"There are several answers to that; the right one, I do not yet know. As to going to the Miller house at midnight, go if you like, Mrs. Bell. I feel sure there will be nobody there, but if there is, and if you present him with ten thousand dollars, remember that it is a present. You will get no returns for it."

"But he says he will give me back my niece—and he spelled 'niece' wrong."

"Niece is a tricky word," he said, a slight twinkle in his eye. "It may well be that the writer of that letter didn't know how to spell it himself."

"Wasn't it right?" said Betty, taking the paper to look at, and speaking so innocently that they had to laugh.

"You see," said Stone. "I think that word can't be counted one way or another, for or against the writer who wants us to think him a numskull."

"The way you put it," Aunt

Judy thought, "I bet he's got that there to him."

"That's the wise woman," Stone agreed. "But, we must have somebody to read it. For my deductions from the letter may be all wrong, and the miscreant may bob up serenely after all."

"I propose that we dress up some man in some of Mrs. Bell's costumes and send him out there at the witching hour, so as to be on the safe side."

"Then the thing to do," said Pete Gibby, "is to pick the chap who's nearest the lady in size and also the best looking. I offer my services."

They laughed at his words, but Stone looked at him appraisingly and said:

"You're the one for it, my lad. Don't take the lady's best clothes."

"No, there may be a scrimmage," and Pete smiled at the thought.

After some further talk over the matter, Abel Collins and Lawyer Craven went home, assuring the detective that they would be at his call at any time if needed.

It was after eleven, so the family set about rigging Pete up in a gown, coat, and hat of Aunt Judy's. Betty cleverly fashioned window, and Sayre from another. Stone threw himself on a couch in his sitting room, knowing he would be called if anything happened.

He thought over the knowledge of the case he had gleaned that evening, and tabulated the information in his methodical mind.

Then he heard Betty's flying feet on the stairs, and he knew the farce, as he felt sure it would be, was over.

As Gibby was coming in the front door, Stone joined the group in time to hear him say: "Sat there an hour, and not a darned soul showed up! Gimme a drink."

Monday morning Fleming Stone came down to the dining room in a hopeful frame of mind, and announced the fact.

"Why are you hopeful?" queried Pete, not with undue curiosity, but with deep interest.

"First, because I feel pretty sure we'll get Miss Duane back, and, too, because I hope to track down the villain who is responsible for her absence."

"Have you any idea who he is?"

"Frankly, no. But I hope to

"A Remarkable letter," he said, cryptically.

a wig, whose curls of cotton wool were so realistic that Aunt Judy declared she should sometimes wear it herself when her hair wasn't curled.

Pete carried no ten thousand dollars, but he carried a serviceable automatic, which he hoped he should have no occasion to use.

He was all ready some time before the witching hour, and declared he meant to start at once and await developments at the try-out.

They watched him from between half-closed blinds as he made his way down the park of Knollwood and out to the road. Along the footpath they could follow the cloaked figure, across the bridge of the big ravine, and then Pete turned in at the Miller house and the watchers lost sight of him.

They went to their rooms, but no one undressed, for they must know the result of the expedition.

The time passed slowly, Betty and Aunt Judy watching from one find out. I don't mind admitting it is the strangest case I have ever been up against it. It presents the most seemingly incongruous features, and has some apparently inexplicable conditions. But, it is an axiom among detectives that the more bizarre a case is, the easier it is of solution. I'm not ready to agree with that, unqualifiedly, but there's a lot in it."

After breakfast, they held conference in the library, a pleasant room, of moderate size, whose furniture and appointments greatly pleased Fleming Stone.

"This is a house after my own heart," he exclaimed, enthusiastically. "If ever I can retire to country, or semi-country life, Hilldale is for me, and a home as nearly like this as possible. Do you expect to live here after your marriage?"

he asked of Rodney, so casually that the young man could have hugged him out of sheer gratitude.
